The Institute for Social Development and Tomorrow Media cordially invite you to the opening of a new photographic exhibition:

Life Going On II

A continuation of photographic stories of people living with HIV first presented three years ago.

At 16h00, November 27, 2008
Exhibition House, 29 Hang Bai, Hanoi.

The exhibition will remain open from
November 28 to December 2, 2008

Photographer Pham Hoai Thanh's exhibition entitled "Life Going On" was first introduced to the public on the World AIDS Day in 2005 with enormous success. In this exhibition, "Life Going On II", Thanh's photos continue to tell live stories of people living with HIV - the passionate artist who has been living with HIV for 16 years, the courageous man who rescues numerous young people from the heroin that once tied his own lives to HIV, a young islander who returns to his breadwinner role for the family after recovering from AIDS bed. Together with these are stories of a charming doctor who concealed the truth of her own HIV infection, an orphan growing up in the warm embrace of the neighbors, and the young woman in the "West Citadel" surviving by selling dumpling while trying hard to protect others from the virus. All brings about the common message - Living is the most valuable thing!
